

The Montreal Branch of the Canadian International Council presents:

Doing the Continental: A New Canadian-American Relationship

A discussion with David Dymont about his new book

Tuesday, January 18, 2011

Registration at 5:30pm, Presentation at 6:00pm

Cocktail to Follow Presentation

McGill University
Leacock Building, Room 232
855 Sherbrooke Street West, Montreal

Directions: Upon entering the McGill University campus through the main gates on Sherbrooke and McGill College, walk straight along the main path. In the horizon will be a neo-classical building flying the McGill flag. The Leacock building is to the left of this building.

Canada's relations with the United States are broad and deep, and with Barack Obama in the White House, the two countries are entering what could be a new era of hope and renewal. From water and energy policy to defence, environmental strategy, and Arctic sovereignty, author David Dymont provides an astute, pithy analysis of the past, present, and future continental dance between two countries that have much in common yet often step on each other's feet.

Admission:

CIC / ISID Members - Free

Non-Member Students - $5.00

Non-Members - $10.00

Registration:

Please RSVP to info@cicmontreal.org

About David Dymont

David Dymont teaches political science at the University of Ottawa and at Carleton University, where he is senior research associate in the Centre on North American Politics and Society. He has served on the staff of the governor general of Canada and was a senior policy adviser in the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade. As a media commentator, he has been heard on CTV, CBC Television and Radio, Radio-Canada (in French), and BBC. He received his doctorate from the Université de Montréal.